The Sun's Report on the last Meeting of the Water Board

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) Board of Directors held its regular monthly meeting on February 29 at the Monterey City Council Chambers.

The MPWMD held a public hearing on a resolution directing its staff not to pursue a dam on the Carmel River. The resolution did allow MPWMD staff to maintain the New Los Padres Dam (NLPD) permits and discuss the transfer of NLPD permits with Cal-Am. Public comments were generally in support of the resolution but there were concerns about the timeliness of a permit transfer. Specifically, why should the MPWMD continue to expend resources on non-dam water augmentation alternative forums if Cal-Am intends to pursue a dam.

David Laredo, MPWMD attorney, advised the Board that there was a "due diligence" clause attached to the NLPD permit which requires construction of the dam to begin in 4 years or the permit could be revoked.

Director Ernst said that the board should not agree to not pursue a dam and that if it does not use the permit the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) will grant the water rights to someone else. Directors Haddad and Karas said they would not support the continued pursuit of a dam as it would be a breech of the voters confidence as the voters defected the NLPD in November. Director Hughes thought a permit transfer was premature and suggested the MPWMD step back and let Cal-Am and the SWRCB battle it out for a while. MPWMD Chair Burkleo said that it was premature to transfer permits to Cal-Am but thought it wise to keep the door open. Burkleo further said that the MPWMD should pursue study sessions of alternatives to demonstrate to the public why a dam is necessary.

Director Karas suggested removing a section of the resolution directing MPWMD staff to pursue a NLPD permit transfer with Cal-Am. Karas said a permit transfer should be discussed after a March meeting with the SWRCB which should clarify if a permit transfer is possible. The ordinance, with the removal of the authorization to negotiation a permit transfer with Cal-Am, passed 5-2; Directors Ernst and Pendergrass dissenting.

Last month Director Haddad submitted a similar resolution directing the MPWMD to take no action to enable construction of a new dam but it was defeated by a vote of 5-2.

Director Haddad submitted a resolution to discontinue connection charges which are intended to fund water augmentation. Director Haddad said the MPWMD should not continue to charge connection fees as the MPWMD currently does not have a project after the defect of the NLPD. MPWMD staff indicated that new connection charges represent a significant portion of the budget; $800,000 this year. David Laredo clarified that the connection charges are to fund the study of a water

RSC struggles to conform with five foot injunction

The Monterey County Superior Court granted a preliminary injunction to a group of 14 plaintiffs, led by Noel Mapstead, to restrain Rancho San Carlos' developers from interfering with "...the course of soliciting signatures on a referendum concerning the Rancho San Carlos Project."

The action was prepared and filed by Alexander Henson on behalf of over a dozen petition signature gatherers opposed to the Rancho San Carlos project, who said they and potential signers of the petition were harassed by Rancho San Carlos employees and "consultants".

Rancho San Carlos representatives countered that they were only exercising their first amendment rights to present their views.

Judge Richard Silver, in granting the preliminary injunction against Rancho San Carlos, "...enjoined and restrained (Rancho San Carlos representatives) from coming within five feet of any person.." engaged in gathering petition signatures.

A subsequent hearing will be held to determine whether Mapstead et al are entitled to a permanent restraining order or other judicial action regarding Rancho San Carlos' developers.

Look for planned Upper Valley fire

Hastings Natural History Reservation in upper Carmel Valley, is working with researchers at UC-Berkeley's Forestry School and California Department of Forestry, to conduct small controlled burns on the reservation to study the effects of nearly 100 years of fire suppression on the natural vegetation.

CDF will conduct a small burn on a chaparral stand in the middle of the reserve on March 7 or 8. This winter burn will create a firebreak.

Plans are underway between CDF and UC-Berkeley to conduct additional controlled and prescribed burns on the reserve as a part of CDF's Vegetation Management Program, under the direction of Butch Washington, in the Monterey office of CDF.

Slavery: Forced Labor Without Pay

It is not likely that you would sign up to work for free for the government. How would you like to be forced by a variety of government agencies to do 10 or more hours of work for free? Every month?

Our nation has long opposed the notion of "involuntary servitude" spelled out in our Constitution. Suppose a Sheriff arrived at your door and told you to appear at some county office and do five hours of paperwork, for which you would not be paid. Further, the Sheriff tells you he will incarcerate you and the courts will fine you if you do not show up and perform.

Every week, month, quarter and year, millions of small American business owners are forced by various government agencies to perform free work for the government. Often, the businesses must pay the agency for providing the service. The penalties for failing to work for free can be staggering.

Immigration & Naturalization Services (INS)
- employers must determine citizenship status;
- employers must maintain and update files on all employees; and
- be available to consult INS.

Sales Tax - State, County and Special Districts
- Businesses are required to collect the taxes.
- maintain an accounting system to segregate the money, complete forms and send the money to the government;
- pay an annual fee (tax) to have the privilege of having a resale license; and
- pay huge fines for any errors.

Internal Revenue Service (IRS)
- weekly or quarterly reports to IRS for income tax, social security and medicare
- annual reports to the IRS and employees (W-2), recapitulating the pay period data.

State Franchise Tax Board/EDD
- quarterly or annual reports for state income tax, state disability, unemployment compensation.

And these are just the heavy hitters. Depending on the business, they may also be required to pay fees (taxes) and provide regular reports to:

State Franchise Tax Board
- Corporation Fees

- Monterey Bay Air Quality Control District
- Fees, fines and reports annually or on demand.

County Clerk
- fee for fictitious business name statement, (every 5 years.)

Business license(s), (City or County)
- Annual report, fees and fines for late reports
- some businesses may be forced to license in every city and county in which they do business.

- County Property Tax(es)
- EPA
-County/State-Planning Departments
-Permit fees for expansions, alterations or new locations.
-EIS/EIR reports.

Business owners and CPAs will point out numerous other areas where the government forces business owners to work for free to perform or augment the work of the government.

The real travesty is that most of the money from these fines, fees and taxes goes to pay the salaries and benefits of the government agencies who engage in the enslavement of American businesses for no real gain for the general populace.

For big businesses, all of this forced labor is a minor nuisance. They can hire outside accounting, consulting and legal firms to perform the work and then deduct most of the costs from their Federal and State taxes. But, for the small businesses, which are most of our businesses, the "free" work will be done at home in the evening or by struggling through long hours in the office, at the store, plant or farm.

A recent poll by a small business association showed that small business owners work nearly twice as many hours per week as the average Federal lower management government employee. But, the business owner earns less than half as much.

Most new businesses fail in the first year. Some fail because their "idea" was not up to the demands of the market. Too many are driven out of business by the overwhelming demands of government to extract slave time and "protection money."

We like to call ours a free market economy and sing the praises of the scant few entrepreneurs who are successful. In fact, the elite socialist government is incapable of distinguishing between a small mom and pop business and General Motors.

If you own a business or are thinking about pursuing the American dream, give careful thought to the "hidden" costs of being an enslaved capitalist.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Sent a letter to Fidel Castro, President of Cuba, which is located in the Western Hemisphere, which is owned by the U. S.

I explained to Pres. Castro that when Pres. Clinton says to jump, then Pres. Castro is supposed to jump, especially after Cuban pilots shot down a couple airplanes that insisted on repeatedly violating Cuban air space. Pres. Clinton was "outraged", whatever that means. I couldn't remember whether any of our Presidents were outraged when missiles from our U.S.S. Vincennes destroyed a foreign country's airliner full of people a few years ago on the other side of our planet.

We are just now getting around to considering paying damages to the families of the victims. The families of the guys that Castro's pilots shot down are going to be paid immediately, out of Cuban government funds held in the U.S. Castro should consider Cuba lucky, that Pres. Clinton did not immediately declare war on Cuba, not just for shooting down intruding aircraft, but for having the colossal nerve to have a communist form of government in our hemisphere.

It's too bad that Clinton wouldn't let Castro travel outside the New York city limits when he came here for a U.N. meeting. He could have told us about Cuba's efforts to curb the spread of AIDS, by keeping AIDS infected people separate from the general population. We use a different system, here in the U.S. When we pick up an AIDS infected prostitute, for example, we honor her Constitutional right to go back to work, spreading the virus.

Pres. Clinton had no choice, of course, with an election coming up. Failing to express outrage at Cuba's action could have lost him every vote in Florida, plus the entire anti-communist paranoid vote, plus the military-industrial complex vote, (with its millions of defense workers, hoping for a war to keep their jobs, etc.) I expect the C.I.A. is already reviewing the Bay of Pigs data, in case we decide on an amphibious landing, in addition to a frontal assault from Guantanamo.

It just goes to show that you just can't take anything for granted. Pres. Clinton, with his Viet Nam war record, was the last person in the world that I would have suspected of being in agreement with anti-communist paranoia promoters.

LETTERS to the Editor

Has known Davi Family for Years

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I have been in business in this area for 40 years and have known the Davi family for the 48 years that I have lived on the Monterey Peninsula.

Now, Jeff Davi, who has contributed his time and effort to the United Fund, and other peninsula programs, is running again for Supervisor of the 5th District. Jeff, as a local third generation son, has the community spirit that is required of a good public official. He has the refreshing energy to "get things done." I hope you will go to the polls in March and vote for Jeff Davi.

Jack Cate

Henson Attacks Davi's 5th District Fundraising

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Developers and real estate interests dominate Jeff Davi's campaign for Monterey County 5th district supervisor, according to my analysis of Davi's campaign contribution records. The analysis also reveals that many of Davi's financial supporters supported the ballot measure to build the Los Padres Dam. That measure failed by a 44% to 56% margin. I think Davi ought to disclose and resolve potential conflicts between his contributors' interest and his responsibilities as a supervisor.

My analysis examined Davi's campaign disclosure statements from January, 1993 through December, 1995, as filed with the Monterey County Election Department. During this period, Davi collected over $240,000 in campaign contributions. People who identify their profession as "Realtor" have given at least $20,000 to the Davi campaign over the last 3 years - possibly more since many contributors failed to identify their occupation and/or employer as required by law. In 1993, Davi received over $6000 from the Los Angeles based California Association of Realtors PAC. And people with the last name of Davi, many of whom work in the real estate industry, have given over $45,000 to his campaign the last 3 years.

The Davi contributors' list looks like a Who's Who of Developers. Moreover, Jeff Davi works for A. G. Davi, Limited - a family owned and operated real estate and property management company with real estate interests throughout the county. He is active in the Monterey Peninsula Association of Realtors, the California Association of Realtors, and the Monterey/Carmel Council of Real Estate. His entire professional orientation - all 5 years of it - is real estate and development. As an elected official, he is going to have to make important decisions about growth and development throughout the county.

With so much of his campaign being funded by developers and Realtors and his own professional interests being tied to development, how is he going to remain objective?

By law, a public official is prohibited from "making, participating in making, or attempting to influence a government decision if it is reasonably foreseeable that the decision could have a material effect on the official, the official's immediate family, or on specified economic interests of the official..." With friends, family and contributors all potentially profiting from his election, Davi's conflicts of interest run far and wide. How in the world will he be effective?

Cross referencing Davi contribution records with those for the failed 1995 Los Padres Dam ballot measure reveal that many large development interests contributed to both campaigns, including:

Nick Lombardo, who during the past 3 years has given over $3700 to the Davi campaign. Among other things, Lombardo owns Rancho Canada Golf Course, Laguna Seca Golf Club and Valley Golf Course. In 1995 Lombardo gave $1000 to the dam campaign.

Inns by the Sea gave $1000 to Davi in 1995 and $1000 to the dam campaign.

The Cannery Row Company, owned by Bert Cutino and Ted Ballesteri, gave $1000 to the dam campaign. The Cannery Row Company and its employees have given more than $2400 to the Davi campaign over the past 3 years.

Mahoney Tancredi realty company gave $1000 to the dam campaign. Both Mahoney and Tancredi have contributed to the Davi campaign.

Victory Toyota & Lexus of Monterey gave $1000 to the dam campaign. Over the past 3 years, they have also given over $3200 to the Davi campaign.

Monterey Peninsula Builder's Exchange (MPBX) Political Action Committee gave $1000 to the dam campaign and has also contributed to the Davi campaign.

Jeff Davi supported the dam. The voters rejected it. He supported the desalination plant. The voters rejected it. He supports the Hatton Canyon Freeway. Is there a growth-inducing measure Davis doesn't support?

I hope voters will consider the above list when they see Jeff Davi tv ads for his campaign.

Says Raising Money is Part of the Process

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

There seems to be some concern by Zan Henson and Dave Potter that Jeff Davi is a better fund raiser than they are. I am sure that they would love to raise more money if they could. Let's face it; Jeff is a very competent, well organized person who is able to secure the confidence of the voters who are willing to substantially support him

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

I met someone the other day who proved to be remarkably diligent about saving money. In this case, it was money his grandmother chose to gift him; $10,000 at the end of each year. It was all there in his bank account, with interest.

Because of his prudence with these annual gifts, he did not feel a need to sign up for more than $100 a month contribution to his 401k retirement account at work. After all, when you accumulate $10,00 a year for a few years, it adds up; and if you don't spend it, it will be there for retirement. Eminently logical, as the Vulcans would say.

This wise person doesn't have to pay any tax on his gifts, but he is beginning to pay some severe taxes on the accumulating interest.

Any financial planner could see that this year's $9500 maximum contribution to a 401k plan is pretty close to grandmother's $10,000 gift. It doesn't take the turn of too many gears to realize our diligent saver might do better to bring $9500 of the annual gift into his budget for living expenses, and sign up for the maximum allowable salary reduction for his 401k account. Yes, his salary allowed him the maximum contribution. He would then be spending tax free income (the gift) in order to make a pre-tax contribution of the same amount to his retirement plan. Interest generated within the plan would accumulate tax-deferred until he begins to make withdrawals. If he enjoys equivalent yields within the 401k plan, the pre-tax contribution and subsequent deferral of taxes on the interest definitely means more money later on. Congress knows that, and the IRS is waiting for the bonanza. Still, there really will be more money for all concerned.

When they say you've got to spend money to make money it just doesn't sound right, does it? In this pleasant situation, it was true.

and in some cases donate more than $100 to his campaign. If you believe Henson and Potter would not accept donations over $100 then get in touch with me and maybe we can arrange for you to buy the Brooklyn Bridge. Don't expect your bank account balance to remain the same if you write either of them a check for $1000.

Henson and Potter don't have wide support. In politics, as in sports, people want to back a winner. Jeff came close in '93 and this time the general consensus is that he will win. That, along with his position on issues such as traffic, water, the environment, his good business sense and his integrity, are the reasons why he has such a broad base of supporters.

Jeff has proven he can raise money for flood relief, the Rotary Club and the United Way. He is an action type of person who does a thorough job at anything he tackles. Jeff will win this election and make a very good and dedicated Supervisor for the 5th District of Monterey County.

RSC Played by the Rules

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

No other developer in Monterey County has ever gone to the time, trouble and effort of carefully discussing their project plans with members of the community, the County and our elected officials to such an extent as the owners of Rancho San Carlos.

For nearly six years now, they have met with various groups, neighborhood associations, environmental organizations and civic clubs to present their ideas and request input and comments. They have diligently followed the County's rules and policies and have met regularly with all agencies and County staff.

The application they filed for the Santa Lucia Preserve reflected this input -- and also asked for exactly what the developers told us they were going to ask for since they first bought the ranch. All the opinions of countless experts in their fields (including third party consultants hired by the County), agreed that this project is not only viable but, in many areas, will actually enhance the environment.

Finally, this project was reviewed in thirteen public hearings, allowing ample opportunity for all of us in this

COMPUTER TALK

Val Healey

PART 1 - AN INTRODUCTION TO COMPUTERS AT A NAIVELY SIMPLE LEVEL

To the vast majority of people, computers are highly complex machines but fortunately, one can use them effectively without a detailed understanding of them. You don't need to be able to write down the combustion equations for an internal combustion engine to be able to drive a car. However, the more you know about your computer the quicker you will be able to extricate yourself from an awkward situation. Moreover, the more you know about them the less likely you will be taken for a ride when it comes to repairs.

Many people with a great sense of curiosity could become very absorbed in the details of how the computers work. For them it could become a hobby that may eventually lead to a full time occupation. Undoubtedly, the more you know about computers in today's fast moving hi-tech world, the better equipped you will be to deal with the very rapid rate of change.

This series will attempt to introduce computers at a naively simple level, even though such oversimplification can have many pitfalls. It is hoped to introduce the subject matter in an organized and efficient way, but your indulgence is begged if this aim sometimes falls short. Inevitably, this means providing reasonably simple definitions for complex things. If you really want to follow this series and learn computers it is essential that you not miss any of the parts and that you save them for future reference. It is virtually impossible for anybody to remember definitions until they have encountered them several times, and it would be a very inefficient use of this limited space to repeat constantly the many definitions we need, so being able to refer back to them is very important. The computers we will deal with here are the IBM PC compatibles, although much of what is introduced will have application to other computers. The reason for this restriction is that about 90% of all microcomputers fall into this category and these computers cost least.

To most people a computer is a metal box the size of a couple of shoe boxes with lights and switches on front that is attached to something like a tv screen, a typewriter keyboard and maybe a printer. That box is called the central processing unit (cpu), the tv screen unit is called the monitor, and the typewriter keyboard is simply the keyboard (often abbreviated to kbd.) The cpu is the heart of the system and the other attachments are called the peripherals. At first we will take a fairly general look at all of these components and then we will move on to a deeper coverage.

When a character on the keyboard is pressed, a microprocessor there sends a code for that character to the cpu. This code typically is a string of 0s and 1s, which we will look at later. The cpu takes this string and then issues instructions to the monitor to draw the corresponding character on the screen. If many characters are entered at the keyboard, say to form a memo or letter, an instruction will be given at the keyboard for the memo/letter to be printed. Then the cpu will send the codes for all of the characters to the printer which then translates them back into characters and prints them. All of these operations are conducted by many programs in the computer, which are files with lists of instructions, and collectively called the software. In contrast, the monitor, keyboard, cpu, printer, etc. are called the hardware.

community to offer our opinions and raise any issues and concerns.

My congratulations to the County staff and Board of Supervisors for making a decision on carefully reviewed facts from scientific reports compiled by experts in their fields -- rather than on politically-laden hearsay.

I join the vast majority of the community when I say that I admire their efforts and am proud to have this project in my neighborhood.

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

What can the Monterey County Planning Dept. possibly be planning for - total traffic gridlock?

The Rancho San Carlos subdivision will add 5000 daily trips through the now overloaded Carmel Valley Rd. - Hwy. 1 corridor. Even CalTrans opposes it. This project along with projects like Quail Meadows and the Eastwood development have been approved in spite of the fact that hundreds of legal unbuilt-on lots in the Valley and South Coast will eventually contribute to the traffic situation. Sections of the Valley Road have already exceeded the Master Plan's traffic "trigger levels". And how can we manage expansion of road use when the pavement is in such poor repair?

Last fall voters rejected the New Los Padres dam - a plan nurtured by

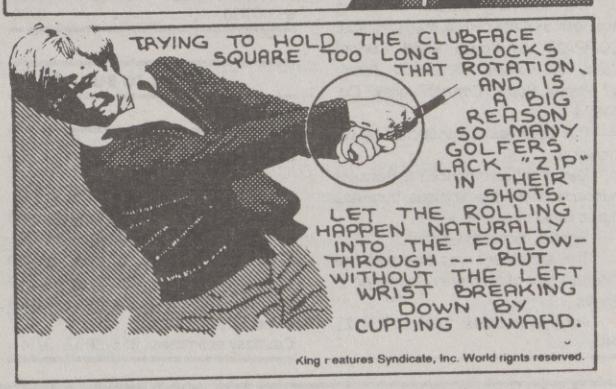
Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

TO RELEASE THE HEAD OF THE CLUB FULLY, THE RIGHT HAND AND FOREARM MUST ROLL OVER THE LEFT HAND AND FOREARM THROUGH AND BEYOND IMPACT.



TRYING TO HOLD THE CLUBFACE SQUARE TOO LONG BLOCKS THAT ROTATION, AND IS A BIG REASON SO MANY GOLFERS LACK "ZIP" IN THEIR SHOTS. LET THE ROLLING HAPPEN NATURALLY INTO THE FOLLOW-THROUGH --- BUT WITHOUT THE LEFT WRIST BREAKING DOWN BY CUPPING INWARD.

developers and duly processed and approved by our government agencies. That ballot issue was as much about growth and traffic as it was about water supply. The RSC project could well face the same voter rejection - let's ask the residents who will have to put up with the hazards, frustration and expense of accommodating more traffic.

Sidney Ragsdale
Carmel

Petitioner says she was harassed by RSC people

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I thought your readers might be interested in hearing about my experiences while trying to get voters to sign the Referendum petition protesting the Board of Supervisors reclassifying zoning for Rancho San Carlos. I was in front of the Carmel Valley Village post office for about 10 minutes when three Rancho San Carlos employees arrived in order to dissuade people from signing the petition.

I decided we were creating too much confusion there to be worthwhile so I went over to the Carmel Valley library. Almost immediately, one of them followed me there. I then moved to the Village Market and he again appeared. Not to give up, I proceeded to MidValley Safeway where he joined me almost immediately. A kindly woman who I didn't know, but who happened to have seen us at the library and again in front of Safeway, asked the man why he was following me and who he was calling on his cellular phone.

Meanwhile, more Rancho San Carlos people arrived but I was able to peaceably get signatures. The lady said she would deliver her groceries home and come back to help me, which she did. They also had people who came up and employed us in drawn out conversations to distract us from getting signers...I heard an exchange between two saying, "Now it's my turn."

Until March 6, we will be out there getting signatures. I have never believed that the Rancho San Carlos Development would be a good neighbor and yesterday's experience certainly reinforced this feeling.

Please consider signing this petition so that we can put the Rancho San Carlos Development up for a vote by the entire electorate.

Carol Spencer
Carmel Valley

Claims Rancho San Carlos Plan is not a Preserve

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

The so-called "Preserve" at Rancho San Carlos will not be public like Garland Ranch or Pt. Lobos. You will only get access by permission, like Pebble Beach.

The 18,000 acres is not separated from the houses, roads and asphalt batch plant. The so-called "Preserve" is actually a checkerboard of small areas.

The so-called "Preserve" is only 18,000 acres when they use legal gymnastics. The total of all land more than 1000 feet from fences, roads, rock quarry, machinery and that asphalt batch plant is smaller than 3000 acres they couldn't build on anyway because its too steep.

Oh and another thing - State law lets (future) residents incorporate into a city if they get enough signatures on a petition. Then the City of Rancho San Carlos can make up its own zoning laws, intensify building and subdivide as much as they want, without any further control by Monterey County.

"You can fool some of the people..."

David Dilworth
Carmel

Read Before You Sign

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I recently signed a petition, yes, that's the one. Rancho San Carlos and many parts of our community are at odds about the "Santa Lucia Preserve". I signed this petition in ignorance of exactly what I was signing. I know, foolish, right? Well, I believe there are many people ignorant of all the facts. We listen to some people over here and we listen to some people over there and we look at a few maps. But how many of us have really studied all the angles and delved into the multitude of potential outcomes. Before you sign a petition, educate yourself about what you are signing.

supply project or projects, not specifically the NLPD.

Director Haddad said the MPWMD has collected over $12 million in connection charges and currently has $3 million left. Director Ernst said that the $3 million does not belong to them and without a project, connection charges should not continue to be collected and the remaining $3 million should be refunded. Director Ely said discontinuing the connection charges was premature and that the MPWMD has to define a project and then reevaluate connection charges. The resolution was defected 2-5; Directors Haddad and Ernst voting in support.

The MPWMD adopted an amended budget for fiscal year 1995-1996. The amended budget reflects a $1.6 million reduction in expenditures related to the defected NLPD.

The MPWMD will hold a special meeting to receive the 1995 MPWMD Annual Report on March 11 at 3pm at the District Conference Room. The next regular MPWMD meeting will be held on March 18 at 7:00 PM at the Monterey City Council Chambers.
